

Jolene Sullivan
Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe

Jolene Sullivan is the Health Services Director for the Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe and manages the Tribe's health clinic, dental clinic, behavioral health clinic, community health services, and business office. Her experience includes program development and oversight, grant management, program and community organizing, and administration of multiple programs.

Ms. Sullivan has a master's degree in social work from the University of Washington and is currently a doctoral candidate in Integrated Behavioral Health Management at Arizona State University. She has over 15 years of experience working in social services within the Tribe, including Child Welfare, Temporary Assistance to Needy Families, Child Support, Youth prevention services, and Behavioral health. She has held a Program Director role for the past 15 years. Jolene is a delegate on the American Indian Health Commission and the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board.

Ms. Sullivan is an enrolled member of the Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe. She has worked to incorporate tribal culture in all aspects of her programs. She provides training and guidance to new staff on S'Klallam values and traditions. Her ongoing leadership as the Health Department director includes educational presentations at multi-level meetings, consultation to other Tribal programs, and participation in Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribal government.